MAY COURSE

De-Escalating Student Behaviors (CEWB-01)

When reflecting on student behaviors, it is critical to look beyond the obvious. Negative life experiences do not stay at home when a child leaves for school in the morning. During this session, participants can develop a deeper understanding of how the brain functions and what leads to challenging behaviors in the classroom. With this knowledge, teachers can be prepared to better meet the needs of all students through research-based techniques and strategies.
